EXCHANGE OF GOOD LOCAL PRACTICES IN FOREST MANAGEMENT: THE IMPORTANCE OF LOCAL COMMUNITIES IN FOREST MANAGEMENT

Analysing the impacts that forest management have on territories, the most obvious and studied consequences are the economic or environmental ones, underestimating the influence that forest management has on population or on social and cultural relations in that territory.

This workshop aims to analyse and disseminate examples of sustainable management of forests where the social component is highly involved and affected, emphasizing the positive consequences.

Examples of good practices from Italy, Poland, Romania, Malta, Spain.
